

Chemistry & Art getting in close touch

For over half a year chemists and artists worked together in a genuine collaboration.

They exchanged expertise, introduced their respective techniques and used objects from both disciplines. By this merger of skills and ideas exciting pieces of art were formed and presented to the public in a joint exhibition.

Besides jointly creating artworks, the chemists improved their skills to communicate chemistry to non-experts, thereby also reflecting their perceptions on research ("Perspektivwechsel").

co.labore